

CONTRIBUTORS

LAURA SANTOS

"My bar always has a vintage ice bucket a friend of mine brought me from Colombia. Every time I see it I want to throw a party. I also make sure I have Don Julio Reposado, a mild and delicious tequila."

—Designer Laura Santos, who contributes our Designer Picks column, on how her home bar is always stocked

HILARIA BALDWIN

"[Ale] practiced yoga before we met—in the summer, he and a group of guys would take what they called 'Middle-Aged White Man Yoga.'"

—Yoga practitioner and creator of the soon-to-launch capsule collection Lexington Hamptonite, Hilaria Baldwin, who pens "Om Improvement," on her better half's exercise habits

ALEX MATTHIESSEN

"As a Buddhist, he also understood the impermanence of things. Nonetheless, I hope that those who appreciated his writing and commitment to protecting the environment, will, in his honor, seek to understand what we have on the East End and do their best to preserve their little pieces of paradise, and the area as a whole, in as much of a natural state as possible."

—Alex Matthiessen, whose tribute to his father, Peter, appears in our Fictionist section, on the best way to honor his dad's memory

JENNIFER GOULD KEIL

"This story has everything—love, sex, death, art, money—and a beautiful woman at the heart of it all."

—New York Post columnist Jennifer Gould Keil, who is writing a book about Ruth Klüger's life, on the intrigue of reporting her investigative feature, "The Battle Over the Last Pollock"

BEACH HOUSE

"I love the shape of these shot glasses—how they feel in your hand and the fact that they come in different colors, so guests don't lose their drinks." $90, by Moser at Barneys New York, barneys.com

"Fun objects are perfect for a bar, more so when they serve a purpose." Lightwood fish cocktail tray, $13, at Hammerature, 6 Main St., Southampton, hammaterature.com

"These chairs are effortless, comfortable and add a pop of color. They're a classic you'll never get tired of." Lacquered chairs, $29,500, by Jules Leleu & Ateiera Jean Prouve at Gustavo Olivieri, 74 Montauk Highway, East Hampton, gustavoolivieriantiques.com

"Mirrors are a great way to open up a space, but they can be cold. Designer Carol Egan treats wood like a piece of fabric, giving it flexibility and softness." Mirror à Goussier carved walnut mirror, price upon request, by Carol Egan at Maïson Gerard, 43 & 53 E. 10th St., NYC, maisongerard.com

SECOND NATURE

Colombian interior designer and Sagaponack resident Laura Santos prepares for summer with warm, earthy design pieces and bar accessories.

"I like when accents come from the floor. Add a couple of tall flowers or fresh branches to this colorful glaze and you'll make any corner shine." Large floor vase, $675, at Laurin Coppen Antiques, 1703 Montauk Highway, Bridgehampton, laurincoppenantiques.com

"Isay Weinfeld is one of my favorite Brazilian architects, so I was thrilled to learn he had a product line. This tray is simple, but its rich and warm materiality makes it inviting." IW Tray, $1,800, by Isay Weinfeld at Espasso, espasso.com

"This bar table is easy to move around and would look great indoors or out." Price upon request, at Wyatt Home, 3654 Montauk Highway, Sagaponack, wyathome.com
